To the Reader

Presumably, you are a descendant of Captain Daniel Roe. As such you are interested in his ancestry and story, and in those of Deborah Brewster, his wife. Together they furnish authority for your admission to several hereditary, patriotic societies, viz.:—

Through Daniel Roe's service in the French and Indian War and in the Revolution, you are eligible to membership in the General Society of Colonial Wars, in the Sons of the Revolution and of the American Revolution, in the Daughters of the Revolution and of the American Revolution.

Through the ancestry of Deborah Brewster you may enter the Society of Mayflower Descendants and that of Descendants of Colonial Governors.

Through the early coming to America of the ancestors of both Daniel Roe and his wife, and their reputable lives, you are, if of the gentler sex, entitled to enrollment in the National Society of Colonial Dames of America.

Should your ancestry include Daniel Roe (3) you are eligible to the General Society of the War of 1812 and to the United States Daughters of 1812.

The foregoing ought to satisfy any man or woman of even the most ultra "jiner" proclivities.

The praiseworthy actions of our forbears, their sacrifices and triumphs, in no way affect us of today except as they may prompt us to nobler living. Mere pride of ancestry is puerile, but admiration for what the fathers were and what they did may be encouraged with no danger of falling into Oriental Shintoism.

"There is a moral and philosophical respect for our ancestors which elevates the character and improves the heart."

Daniel Webster.

To the score and more cousins of greater or less remoteness who by their co-operation have rendered the printing of this ancestral tribute possible, many thanks are due, and they are hereby rendered with the hope that my labors have not been barren of information and pleasure to the descendants of Captain Daniel Roe.

ALFRED SEELYE ROE.

Introduction

Daniel Roe, of Brookhaven, Long Island, was the third in descent from John Roe or Rowe who settled in Drowned Meadow, now Port Jefferson, in 1667. Of this first settler, it is claimed that he was born in Ireland in 1628, that he came to America in 1655, and to Southampton, L. I., five years later. He was a shoemaker by trade and agreed to be of service in this capacity to his fellow settlers. In his will, drawn in 1711, he mentions himself as "Cordwainer." To him were assigned the acres lying along the head of Brookhaven harbor, and to this day, the streets of Port Jefferson are largely parallel to the winding shores of that beautiful body of water. For more than a hundred years, the settlement had few accessions; as late as 1797 there were but five dwelling houses, one, that of the first John Roe (the spelling of his name was indifferent to him. It is Rowe on his tombstone); a second was that of Phillips Roe, and a third was erected by John Roe, father of the Captain. In 1812 there were only nineteen houses, a veritable Sleepy Hollow, till the introduction and growth of ship-building made the bustling village, and brought, in 1836, the name, "Port Jefferson."

In this quiet place, and in its vicinity, the Roes abode for at least three generations, and their graves were made and preserved in a family burial-ground till, in the march of events, a new street must needs go through the same, hence what was left of their bones found final burial in the new cemetery, finely placed, but not where the fathers chose to sleep.

To John Roe and his wife, Hannah, were born sons, John and Nathaniel.

Nathaniel Roe married Hannah Reeve, of Southold, of the family which later gave to Connecticut her famous jurist, Judge Tappan Reeve, him of the Litchfield Law School.

To this Nathaniel and his wife, Hannah, came also sons, Nathaniel and John; the reversed order will be observed. From this third Nathaniel descended the Hudson River Roes, including E. P. Roe, the novelist, also the Roes of Cortland and Tompkins counties. John Roe, of the third generation, married widow Joanna (Miller) Helme, of Miller's Place, of the town of Brookhaven. It is claimed that her ancestor was John Miller, son of Rev. John and Lydia Miller, of Massachusetts, who married, Dec. 24, 1659, Margaret, daughter of Josiah Winslow, a brother of Edward Winslow, Governor of Plymouth Colony. However pleasant such descent might be, it is more reasonable to believe that our John Miller is the one found at Easthampton in 1649 and who married a sister of Abraham Pierson, afterwards the first President of Yale College. John's son, Andrew, later became the first settler in Miller's place, a hamlet of Brookhaven. The Miller descent was John,¹ Andrew,²

Andrew,³ Joanna.⁴ She married, first, Thomas Helme, who was killed while felling a tree, leaving an infant son, Thomas, Jr. The family name was one of the best on eastern Long Island. Like his half-brother, Captain Roe, he bore his part in the Revolutionary struggle. The Rev. A. M. Roe, of Fulton, says, "I often heard my father (Austin Roe) speak of Uncle Helme." In 1775, Thomas Helme was one of the heaviest taxpayers in the town.

John Roe and his wife, Joanna, had sons John, Justus, Azel, Daniel and Austin; daughters, Joanna, Amy and Hannah. John Roe of the fourth generation retained the homestead erected by his father, and in it a direct descendant, Charles F., is living now. Justus lived chiefly in Setauket; Azel, a graduate of Princeton College, 1756, for more than fifty years was pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Woodbridge, N. J. He, too, did valiant service in the Revolution, suffering imprisonment in the Sugar House, of New York. Several interesting letters from him to his brothers are still extant; a grandson was A. S. Roe, the novelist; Austin lived on the south shore near Patchogue; Joanna married James Davis; Amy, ——— Woodhull; Hannah, Isaac Davis. Of Austin, above, it should be stated that he bore the title "Captain" from service in the militia, and that, during the earlier part of his life, he kept a tavern in Setauket, where his unmarried brother, Justus, made his home with him. Later he moved to the south shore. When in April, 1790, General Washington made his tour of Long Island, he has for the 22d, in part, the following entry: "From Hart's we struck across the Island for the No. side, passing the East end of the Brushey Plains—Koram 8 miles—thence to Setauket 7 miles to the House of Capt. Roe, which is tolerably dect. (decent) with obliging people in it." He left Roe's at 8 the next morning. Had the President cared to record all the happenings of that 22d, he might have added that Capt. Roe had the misfortune to break his leg while hurrying home to receive His Excellency and, as a consequence, was lame for the rest of his life.

Daniel Roe, the fourth son of John and Joanna, was born, Jan. 20, 1740, in the house built by his father, and still standing, in Port Jefferson; he died, Jan. 11, 1820, at his long-time residence in Westfields, now Selden, near the middle of Long Island; the post-office was Coram. He was married, April 22, 1762, to Deborah, daughter of Joseph Brewster, of Setauket, in the township of Brookhaven.

The Brewster line on Long Island is from Nathaniel, the first regular pastor of the church in said township. He was a graduate of the first class in Harvard College, 1642, and is claimed to be the first native American graduate. While the statement is disputed by Savage and others, Thompson in his History of Long Island, and Prime in his Ecclesiastical Story of the Island, say he was the grandson of Elder William Brewster of the MAYFLOWER, his father having been Jonathan, the Elder's oldest son. Nathaniel Brewster married Lucretia, daughter of Roger Ludlow, DEPUTY GOVERNOR of Massachusetts in 1634; later was DEPUTY GOVERNOR of Connecticut, dying in Virginia in 1665. Brewster preached for a number of years in England, coming to Setauket in 1655 and continuing till his death in 1690. His sons became prominent citizens of the new town, and of them Timothy married Mary Hawkins, probably daughter of Zachary, another of the founders. Their son, Joseph, married Ruth Biscoe, of a Milford, Conn., family. To Joseph and Ruth came a numerous family, of whom a second Joseph was an influential citizen; a dau., Mary, was married to John Roe, Daniel's elder brother; and Deborah, born Sept. 10, 1741, became the joint progenitor of the extended family which looks to Daniel and Deborah Roe for ancestral authority. She died Jan. 2, 1832, and with her Captain sleeps in the family burial-ground, across the road from the homestead.

Of that low-studded house, it might be stated that the Wayne County Roes have said that they had from its chambers looked out through bullet holes, marks of Tory hate, made when the patriot mother held the fort, while her husband was away and before the flight. One might remark that it was all too small a building for so many inmates, but its heyday was before later usages made such imperative demands for space, and Elisha Overton was wont to remark: "It was a happy place when the children were all at home." During the early Revolutionary days, she had the help of Tom Ryant, who had been reared in the family, and Ruth Dayton, who had been hired for this purpose. During the family absence, the place was occupied by a Tory neighbor, who made the most of his opportunity, and from whom, we are told, damages were later obtained. It is said that a particular grievance to him was the fact that Captain Roe came back in time to harvest a crop of corn which the Tory had planted and expected to gather.

The Long Islanders, in those days, were a prolific people, and to our ancestors came twelve children, of whom all but two lived to maturity and nearly all to advanced ages. Unfortunately the photographer did not then exist, and their station in life could not command the painter's brush, but of their personal appearance we have the description of those who saw them. Sheldon R. Overton, a grandson, born in 1800, said of the Captain: "He was rather under the average stature, dark of eyes and complexion, quick and active in his bearing, not unlike his youngest son, Austin." Of his wife, Deborah, the Rev. Austin M. Roe says: "She was a small woman with flashing, black eyes, an object of tenderest affection to all her children, and was seventy-two years old when I was born, hence quite past the period of activity. I can remember, however, that she always had, on her face, something said to be of a cancerous nature which she was able to keep in abeyance by an application made from poke-berries: dying, finally, at a great age from other causes." When, in the early eighties, Mr. Roe visited his birthplace in Selden, now and then the residence of Mr. Samuel Dare, as he stood in the living-room, on the left side of the main entrance, and faced the great fire-place, he said: "There is where Grandmother used to sit, right up in the chimney-corner." Never till that moment did at least one of the party know just what "chimney-corner" meant. Another grandson, the second Joseph B. Roe, said of Deborah Brewster: "She possessed great fortitude, patience and equanimity of mind, although she was slender and delicate in person.

The children of this worthy couple, in order, were Daniel, Joseph Brewster, Deborah, John, Joanna, Charlotte, Ruth, Mary, Hannah, Rebecca and Huldah (twins), and Austin, of which list the last four were born while the family was in exile, i. e., while living in Connecticut during the Revolution. While the temptation to dwell on the merits of each respective member of this family is great, the limits of the article forbid more than the barest detail, though this must be said, that each one was a Puritan of the strictest type, worthy descendants of people who had left their British homes for conscience sake. The regularity of the advent of children to this household from the first in 1762 to the last in 1782, with an interval of two years in every case, is worthy the study of sociologists; evidently, Nature had her own way to the letter.

(1) Daniel, b. Nov. 29, 1762; m. Feb. 15, 1787, in Oxford, Conn., Nabby, dau. of Daniel and Hannah Tucker of Derby, Conn., but coming straight from the Long Island descendants of Captain John Tucker, who was one of the first settlers in Brookhaven. This marriage was, without doubt, one of the direct results of the Roe living in Connecticut during the Revolution. The young people began their married life in Derby, where Daniel was very prominent in the M. E. Church. Later they lived in Litchfield, but in 1812 they made the "Westward Ho" experiment, locating in what is now Butler, Wayne County, N. Y., near the village of Wolcott. Here, too, Daniel Roe was active in religious work, and was instrumental in planting Methodism in the town and county.

To this Daniel and his wife was born a numerous progeny. There were thirteen children, who followed each other almost as regularly as did their uncles and aunts a generation before, for from Samuel in 1788 to Orrene, 1811, there was no break of the two years' interval save midway in the list, 1796 is followed by 1797, thus changing from the even to odd years. Samuel and

William died in childhood, the former born in Brookhaven and the next in Derby, where the little ones continued to appear till 1803, when Austin was born. Thence the birthplace was transferred to Litchfield. Deborah Hannah, b. in 1805, died in early womanhood in Butler. The Christian names of her grandmothers should be noted. All the other children attained maturity and lives of usefulness; they were Daniel, John, Polly, Nabby, Rebecca, Sophronia, Austin, Willis W., Joseph Brewster and Orrene. The pioneer mother of this family died in 1840 at the age of 70 years, while Daniel, the father, lived till 1852. The third Daniel in this series m., first, Alice Wright; second, Lydia Fitch, and had three children; he died in 1884, aged 92 years, a pensioner of the War of 1812; John m. Huldah Seymour of a distinguished Connecticut family, and had six children; he died, 1876, aged 82 years; Polly m. Daniel Wood, and had no children; Nabby m. Cornelius Vanderroef, and was childless; Rebecca

m. William Wood, and had four children; Sophronia m. Benjamin Howland, and had six children; Austin m. Sarah Wisner, and was the father of eight children; he died at 63 in 1806; Willis W. m. Flora Spencer, and had four sons; he also died at 63 in 1871; Joseph Brewster m. Charlotte Wisner, sister of Sarah, Austin's wife, and had four children; Orrene, the wife of Jotham Post, was the mother of four children.

(2) Joseph Brewster, b. Sept. 8, 1764; m., first, Polly Hammond of a Long Island family, whose earliest representative there was the Rev. Noah, who died in Coram, 1774, he being the fourth in descent from Thomas, who settled in Hingham, Mass., in the seventeenth century. From many sources come statements of the saintly character of Captain Roe's second son; his admirable traits seemed to so impress his relatives that the combination Joseph and Brewster still persists among descendants and distant relatives more than seventy years since his death. It would seem that he was an early convert to the Methodist faith, and his home, near that of his father, was long a place for preaching and social meetings. Joseph and Polly were parents of Joseph Brewster, Polly, Amy, John Wesley, Samuel, Fanny, Huldah and Nelson Hammond, eight in number; he married for his second wife Dorinda Howell, also of one of the oldest Long Island families, particularly in the town of Southampton; to them were born Hester Ann, Francis Asbury and Sarah Elizabeth, making eleven children in all. This family has remained largely on Long Island, Isaac Brewster Roe of Port Jefferson, a son of John Wesley Roe, being the principal custodian of information concerning it. Joseph Brewster Roe, 2d, b. in 1790, was a man of wide experience, and frequently visited his Wayne County relatives; he married Orrene Selleck of Connecticut, and had three children, of whom Elijah Woolsey lived long in New York city, dying at the age of 82 years in 1896; the latter left a family of eight daughters and one son, Joseph Brewster, now a lawyer in New York. The first Joseph Brewster died in 1831 on his 67th birthday; his son, the second Joseph B., died in Patchogue, L. I., in 1871.

(3) Deborah, b. July 31, 1766, was m. Oct. 12, 1782, in Woodbury, Conn., to Truman Porter, of the family which gave Pres. Noah Porter to Yale College, and distinguished men to all the professions. As will be seen, Deborah at the early age of sixteen was wedded to a man considerably her senior, he having been a soldier during the Revolution. He was born in Woodbury in 1756, and when Captain Roe and family came back to Long Island he accompanied them, and lived to be nearly or quite 90 years old. His wife, Deborah, died in her 85th year. Their children were many, and for their names we are indebted to the second Joseph B. Roe. They were Daniel, Sarah, Clarissa, Charlotte, Polly, Ruth, Catherine Garretson, Jesse Johnson, Nabby, and five others whom their cousin did not name. It is a matter of regret that so little is known of these fourteen children; Sarah became the wife of Amos Soper of a Smithtown family, and the mother of five sons and at least one daughter, all of whom lived a longer or shorter time in Wayne County. They were Daniel, Egbert, Joseph Brewster, Platt, Pryor, and Mrs. Isaac Curtis. The latter two returned to Long Island.

(4) John, b. Oct. 9, 1768, m. Elizabeth Foster of Quogue, town of Southampton, another long-established family. She was fifth in descent from Christopher Foster, who came to the Island among the very first. She was born Nov. 22, 1778, and died in Honesdale, Penn., March 16, 1851. In the earlier days it was customary to select one of the sons for a profession, and John was the chosen one in this group. For some time he studied with his uncle, Azel, the New Jersey clergyman, but his health failing he chose a mercantile life, locating in New York city, where he died Nov. 16, 1807, leaving an infant son, John Foster, b. Aug. 25, 1806, who was reared in the old Foster home, Long Island, and was educated for the profession of a civil engineer, but his mother, thinking that hardly stable enough, he went in early life to Honesdale, Penn., and there spent his life, following chiefly the career of a merchant. He was twice married: first, Ruth Sayre; second, Anna R. Fuller, and was the father of seven children, of whom four survive.

(5) Joanna, b. Jan. 24, 1770, became the wife of Laban Worth, whose progenitors had long been on the Island. He was a farmer and lived near the old home of his wife. He died in 1816, but his wife survived till 1860. Their children were Coleman, Abbie, Sylvester, Seth, Huldah, Phoebe, John, and Anna. Coleman, who had learned the trade of ship-carpenter, followed his uncles, Daniel and Austin, to Wayne County, and located on Port Ray in the town of Wolcott; his wife was Nancy Bunce, and to them were born Nancy B., Justice O., Edward G., Samuel M., William H., and Sarah Alice; Nancy became Mrs. Havens Smith, J. O. was a Methodist minister of the New York East Conference, William H. died as a surgeon during the Rebellion, Edward was a Wolcott farmer, Sarah Alice married Edwin J. Foster of Red Creek, N. Y., and all now are in the other world. Sylvester Worth married Hannah Mott, and left no children. Seth Worth married Kate Smith, and had two children. Huldah Worth became the wife of Daniel Mott, who represented another long-settled family on the Island, and finally both moved to Missouri, where they died; their children were Joseph Brewster, Daniel Roe, Anne, Hannah, and John F., of whom the first named is still living in Easterville, Iowa; Anne married, first, a Johnson; second, Baldwin; Hannah married Hiram Nowlin of Pulaski, Mich. To Daniel Roe Mott and his wife, Sally M. Miller, were born nine children, six of whom are now living in Michigan. Phoebe Worth married Loren Doolittle, and had four children, one of whom, Silas, now living in Dowagiac, Mich., was a soldier in the 75th N. Y. Infantry. John Worth, who was a sea captain, was robbed and killed, leaving two children to be reared by their Grandma Worth, as their mother soon followed the father; Abbie and Anna died unmarried, the latter at seventeen years.

(6) Charlotte, b. May 15, 1772; m. Daniel, son of Joseph and Mehitabel (Vail) Brown, another old Long Island name; Daniel was one of eighteen children. To Charlotte and Daniel Brown came eleven children, all of whom, save the last two, were born on Long Island; Hetta, the second, and Charlotte, the ninth child, died in infancy; Harriet, the first born, m. Daniel Moore; Emma m. Joseph M. Smith; Joseph, Sophia Sweazey; Fanny, John Allen; Hannah, Deacon Sage; James, third wife, Cordelia Peas; Daniel Roe, Sarah Wood; Alfred Nathaniel, Mary Smith; Benjamin Brewster, Emily Hotchkiss. The family in 1812 moved to Windsor, Broome County, and taking up new land were prosperous farmers and worthy citizens; their numerous descendants are found largely in the western portions of New York State. Mrs. Charlotte Brown died in her 68th year.

(7) Ruth, b. May 19, 1774; d. May 12, 1847. She was married to Elisha Overton, of a family identified with Southold and Brookhaven from their respective beginnings; through Palmer, David and Isaac he was fourth from Isaac the first, a race of farmers. To Ruth and Elisha were born Charlotte, Sheldon and Lewis (twins), Coleman, Brewster, and Harriet; Sheldon m. Catherine Roe of Rose, N. Y., and settled in Wayne County, dying in Wolcott when past the age of 80 years; Lewis remained on the Island, as did Charlotte, the latter dying unmarried many years ago. It was in her keeping that Captain Roe's journal was had for a long period. Lewis's son, Webster, now resides near the old home of Elisha, post-office Coram.

(8) Mary, b. June 23, 1776, came just a little before the Declaration of Independence, and was a babe in arms when the flight to Connecticut took place, and was an interesting bit of a girl when the family returned, but to her was denied that length of days so characteristic of her brothers and sisters, for she was nearing the sweet period of sixteen when, May 3, 1792, she broke the family ranks by her death, and was the first to be buried in the plot south of the earthly home, where, later, father, mother, brother and sister were to lie.

(9) Hannah, b. in Connecticut April 8, 1778; d. March 16, 1854. She was the wife of Zophar Hallock, a scion of another long-settled Island family; through Daniel,⁵ Jonathan,⁴ John,³ William,² his lineage went back to Peter Hallock, one of the very first to settle in Southold. Their home was in what was once called New Village, now Lake Grove, a few miles west of the Captain's home, and here they reared their family of nine children, viz., Nancy, who m. Jason Hammond; Laura m. Mowbray S. Hammond; John Foster m. Elvina Overton; Almira; Mary Eliza m. I. A. L'Homedieu; Daniel Roe m. Mary H. Rogers; Charlotte Roe m. I. Tilotson; Samuel Merret m. Sarah Snedecar; Harriet Newel. The two older sisters married brothers descended from the same Thomas Hammond mentioned in connection with Joseph Brewster's wife, Polly, who was an aunt of these two. The latter reared a large family of eight children; two sons were Methodist preachers, two were teachers and one a physician; their homes were scattered from Connecticut to Virginia. Daniel Roe Hallock remained on the paternal acres; of his six children one is Benjamin Franklin, who resides near the old Hallock home, and his hand rescued from the mass of old papers on their way to the paper-mill, the precious manuscript written by Capt. Daniel Roe, which forms the burden of this book.

(10 and 11) Rebecca and Huldah, twins, b. Sept. 13, 1780, in Connecticut. Rebecca died Oct. 7, 1785, very soon after the return of the family to Long Island; Huldah remained at home, saw her father and mother laid in the grave, and accompanied her brother, Austin, when, in 1833, he removed to Wayne County. There she later married Levi Smith of Wolcott, and with him removed to Indiana, where in Michigan City she died in 1840.

(12) Austin, b. Oct. 18, 1782, in Woodbury, Conn. To him fell the lot of staying at home and being the chief help of his parents in their age. He is mentioned in nearly every entry in the journal. He married, May 19, 1810, his first cousin, Sally, dau. of Austin Roe of Patchogue; to them were born eight children, two of whom, Sylvester and Ebenezer, died in infancy; the others were Daniel Jones, who m. Mary Ann Tillow, and removed to Michigan; Catherine m. S. R. Overton (vid. Ruth Overton); Eliza m. George Stafford and died in Ohio; John Brewster m., first, Roxana Sours; second, Eunice Livermore; following his father on the Rose, Wayne County, farm. Rev. Austin Marinus m. Polly C. Seelye, and resides in Fulton, N. Y.; Fanny M. m. Timothy R. Smith, and lives in Clyde, New York.

The list is ended. Any one caring to enumerate them will find eighty-one names included among Captain Daniel's grandchildren, an average of nine for each child who was the father or mother of children. Reckoning from the standard of President Roosevelt, the record is a proud one. Had the same average continued to this time, when Captain Roe's great-great-grandchildren are themselves parents, making the same allowance for death and barrenness as in his immediate family, viz., one-fourth, we should find more than 3600 descendants in the fourth generation, but the century and more intervening between this date and that of the coming of his first grandchild have developed obstacles to an extent which eliminates averages, and those parents consider themselves fortunate who are able to perpetuate just the producing number, viz., two. Of the total eighty-one grandchildren, only the Rev. Austin M. Roe and his sister, Mrs. Fanny M. Smith, survive, aged respectively 80 and 75 years, they being the youngest children of Austin, Captain Daniel's youngest child.

A brief and partial résumé of the descendants discloses representatives of all the learned professions, inventors and skilled mechanics, bankers, merchants of all sorts of goods; in fine, it shows every form of securing an honest livelihood, but by far the largest number has kept "Near to Nature's Heart;" in other words, the Roes and their affiliated branches have been tillers of the soil. There have been and are clergymen, lawyers, physicians and teachers of "credit and renown," but of the great majority it must be said that the farm is their principal theatre. An ancestor was a graduate in Harvard's first class, and in the latest classes of the said mother of American colleges have been found descendants of the Captain in the fifth generation. Yale gave a Doctorate of Divinity to Azel Roe, Captain Daniel's militant, ministerial brother, and in the eighties she graduated in full course a great-great-grandson of the officer. The Methodist antecedents of the family may largely account for the fact that from Wesleyan University no less than nine descendants have been graduated, and five more were pupils there, while from

Smith, Mount Holyoke, and other institutions for the gentler sex his granddaughters of more or less remove have secured the educational advantages desired.

ITEMS FROM PRINTED AND WRITTEN SOURCES CONCERNING
CAPT. DANIEL ROWE.

FRENCH AND INDIAN WAR.

The papers of Captain Roe contain very little bearing on his service in this earlier struggle. Of course, we have the commission issued to him by Governor Colden, and his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Henry T. Lee of Clyde, N. Y., has a valuable souvenir in the shape of a powder-horn, profusely ornamented, always claimed to have been brought back from this expedition, but a diligent examination of all written records reveals only the following, viz., an effort to obtain recognition from the Government of the work done by certain soldiers before the Revolution. What would we not give if the names of those interested in the move had been signed? In most excellent penmanship, and in ink which defies the erasive power of time, we read:

"Whereas it is published in the public newspapers of the State of New York that a meeting in the Scipio will be held on the second Tuesday of September next for the purpose of devising means for obtaining the lands allowed to the soldiers, or their heirs, who actually served in the Old French War, in pursuance of said Notice a Meeting was held in Smithtown, Suffolk County of us whose names are underwritten who were actually in said service, or the heirs of those who actually served and have agreed to appoint and do hereby authorize and appoint..... our Agent to attend the said Meeting at Scipio, with full power to act and do for us and each of us as if we were personally present."

Subsequently a meeting was held and the following record is had: "Agreeable to agournment a meeting was held at Titus Gould's inn keeper in Brookhaven the nineteenth of August 1817 when the above was duly considered and Lieutenant Rowe was unanimously elected to the agency of all the undersigned."

Unfortunately, no names follow. Did our Captain, the Lieutenant of the French War, attend? The subject merits further investigation, but at present the nearest we can come to an answer is in an extract from a letter written by his daughter, Charlotte Brown, in April, 1818, saying, "Mr. Brown and Joseph are gitting in their Spring wheat on the side hill where Dear Father walked up and down when he was here." Apparently Captain Roe had visited his child and family the preceding fall, and what more natural than that he should combine the pleasure of a call on his kindred in Broome County with the business engagement in Cayuga? A third heading in the same document relates to the payment of expenses incident to the Scipio meeting, hence it is not improbable that our ancestor had the double pleasure of visiting, furthering a good cause and at the same time knowing that he was getting diversion gratis. When we reflect that all this was before the days of railroads or even canal facilities, we have cause to admire the mettle of a man of seventy-seven years who would undertake a journey of such length with its necessary trials and inconveniences.

FROM UNDERDONK'S REVOLUTIONARY INCIDENTS OF SUFFOLK COUNTY.

No. 542.—"At a meeting of freeholders and other inhabitants of Brookhaven June 8, 1775: By a large majority were chosen 16 persons as a Committee of Observation to represent said town and deliberate on other matters relative to our present political welfare." * * * Said committee met June 27, Tuesday, and among the fifteen present were Daniel and Nathaniel Roe, cousins; Joseph Brown, whose son, Daniel, was to marry subsequently our Captain's daughter, Charlotte; and Thomas Helme, the half brother of Daniel Roe. The committee passed, unanimously, seven resolutions. While the first declared unfaltering loyalty to King George the others as forcibly take to task the course of the King and Parliament in oppressive acts, apologize for the lateness of the resolutions, and declare a fixed determination that no provisions be transported from the bounds of their constituents for the aid and comfort of their enemies.

No. 552.—"At a meeting held in Smithtown, Sept. 6, 1775, for nominating Field Officers for the Western reg. of Suffolk Co., there were present among others, Daniel and Nathaniel Roe and Joseph Brown."

No. 555.—"At the same place and for regimental purposes, Brookhaven sent several representatives, among them, Daniel and Nathaniel Roe."

No. 560.—"Manor St. George, December 15, '75. Gentlemen, There have enlisted as Minute men 70 able-bodied men within the bounds of Brook Haven, Smithtown, Manor St. George, and the Patentship of Moriches who have chosen Dan'l Roe, Capt.; Hugh Smith, 1st Lt.; Caleb Brewster, 2d Lt.; Eben'r Phillips, Ensign." * * * * * [Nath'l Roe was Captain of the 3d Company from Brookhaven.]

No. 576.—"May 9, '76. 2d N. Y. Reg. 1. Dan'l Roe, Capt.; Jona. Titus, 1st Lt.; Geo. Smith, 2d Lt.; Benj. Titus, En."

No. 610.—"Saybrook, Sep. 24, '76. Last Friday (Sept. 20) a party from Lt. Col. Livingston's detachment was put under command of Capt. Dan'l Roe, to go from Saybrook to B. Haven, for the purpose of bringing off Roe's family, and a No. of others. On Friday night 12 o'clock, the Capt. left the sloop at Brook H. taking 14 men with him to assist in bringing down the family, leaving 14 under Lt. Geo. Smith on board, to guard the vessel. He pressed teams as he went to bring down the goods, not being able to procure them by other means. At 9 a.m., just as he was ready to return, he was informed by one of the guards that Richard Miller of B. Haven, a young gentleman of family and fortune, but a notorious enemy to his country (who had arms concealed at his house), was passing his house: upon which R. ordered his men to hail him, and if he refused to stop, to fire on him. He was hailed 3 times, upon which he stopped and 5 men with their pieces presented told him they would instantly kill him if he attempted to stir. He stood and viewed them half a minute, then discharged a pistol at them, and rode off with the utmost expedition, on which he was several times ordered to stop, but he refusing five guns were separately fired at him, from the last of which a ball was shot through his body, upon which he dismounted and was carried into Capt. Roe's house, and left in the care of a no. of the inhabitants. Capt. R. being informed that one Jacob Smith, who was in conjunction with Miller, and not far distant when he was taken, had collected a party of several, and were endeavoring to surround and take him, thought it prudent to retreat on board his vessel, where he had but just time to arrive with his wife and family, being obliged to leave all his effects behind.

"Miller and Smith had received commissions under the King of G. Britain, and had been raising men, pressing horses and wagons, together with persons to drive them, to assist Howe in removing his baggage. They had likewise taken fat cattle from the inhabitants, and obliged them to drive them to the Ministerial Army."—Conn. Courant, Sept. 30, '76.

CAPT. DANIEL ROE'S RESIDENCE, WESTFIELDS, NOW SELDEN, L. I., ERECTED BEFORE THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR. REV. A. M. ROE, FULTON, N. Y., LEFT; G. M. ROE, CINCINNATI, O., RIGHT.

No. 621.—"Oct. 28, '76. Gov. Trumbull directs 6 R. I. whale-boats, with 36 men under Cols. Livingston and Richmond, with Lt. Geo. Smith, Caleb Brewster and D. Roe (best acquainted with the situation of places) to take three transports and make the best of their way to Southold Bay, to Canoe Place; thence across into South Bay up as far as Mastic, and bring off the effects of Col. Floyd and others of our friends, and return as soon as possible. Instead of this they captured 2 sloops (Princess Mary and Lily), loading with wood by order of Capt. Smith, for Gen. Howe and lying at the dock, head of Brookhaven Harbor. They also surprised Capt. Smith and part of his company, but declined marching to Smithtown to attack the rest of Delancey's Brigade, stationed there."

No. 639.—"Jan. 4, '77. Ensign Benj. Titus is recommended for a 2d Lieutenant by Capt. Dan'l Roe and others." [All refugees from Suffolk.]

No. 707.—"Petitions of Suffolk Co. Refugees in Comm. Ap. 27, '80, Joshua Smith and Capt. D. Roe of B. Haven, at Middletown, Conn.; Capt. D. Roe at Woodbury, '80; Lt. Caleb Brewster of Continental and others." [Just what they wanted does not appear.]

Page 258, Appendix. Note to No 555.—“Field and staff officers of 1st Reg. of Suffolk Co., Wm. Floyd, Col.; Gilbert Potter, Lt. Col.; Jeffrey Smith and Jesse Brush, Majors; Phillip Roe, Adjt.; John Roe, Q. M.” [As the 13th and last Captain in the list appears “Dan’l Roe’s Minute Comp.” (numbering 76 men in all). Phillip should doubtless be “Phillips” Roe, a cousin of our Captain, while John Roe was an older brother.]

An old account-book, very much torn and abused, now in the possession of Mrs. Stephen W. Soule of Rose, N. Y., a great granddaughter, has a series of accounts between Capt. Daniel Roe and the several members of his company. The accounts run as though kept in New Haven, Conn., and contain fifty-six names, while torn leaves indicate seven others. A comparison with the roll of May 1st shows that all the names on this later one are found there, except those of Jonathan King, John Dicher, Selah Brush, Peter Toman and William Bassett. Wages are computed to Oct. 31, 1776. Just one surviving page of stubs would indicate that the book once contained the pay-roll for the quarter ending July 1st, '76. The final two and one-half pages of the book are given to entries as a justice of the peace. As many leaves at the end are missing, it is impossible to tell how many cases are lost, but those given covering April 1-6, 1784, and March 21-April 26, 1785, include no less than twenty-five cases. We might infer that the community was litigious, not to say quarrelsome.

Judging from contemporary sources, our ancestor was more often called Esquire than Captain Roe, civil office being preferred to military. For many years he held some form of town office; from April 3, 1798, to March 31, 1800, he was President of the Board of Trustees, the highest office in the town, and from April 7, 1807, to April 5, 1808, was again a member.

Concerning the family flight from the Island it might be said that the incident has been told among the descendants with variations during the century and a quarter intervening. As the Rev. A. M. Roe of Fulton, N. Y., tells the tale told to him by his father, Austin, “Uncle Daniel was standing in the doorway, a lad in his early teens, and saw Miller approaching. He was a second cousin of Grandfather, and had been to see his affianced, who lived some distance to the west, and had stayed very late. On seeing him, Uncle exclaimed, ‘Here comes that Tory Miller,’” whereupon the men rushed out with the result as told. Among the embellishments of the narrative it was said that Miller, as he turned from the soldiers after halting, derisively slapped his hand upon that part of his person nearest the saddle and put spurs to his steed. The Rev. Andrew Roe of Marcellus, N. Y., on seeing the Courant story, says, “This agrees exactly with the story as Grandfather used to tell it, the latter saying that he was fourteen years old, and that he walked all the way to the landing and carried a gun.”

Only one letter received by Captain Roe in war times is preserved, and it, addressed to Shelter Island, is as follows:

Coram, August 19th, 1776.

Sir, After my kind love to you I have nothing remarkable to write to you at present I am well and my family and I believe that your wife and children is well for your wife was at Isaac Davis last week. Saturday. (Said Davis was a brother-in-law of the Captain) and I hope that these lines will find you well in health and Resolut in the Cause for I believe that matters is just at hand for I Reseived a letter from Newyork Last Friday and by that they expect the atax (attack) every day and our (hour), all they wate for is a southwest weand (wind) the letter says. the Tores begin to hold up their heads and he that is not for us is against us therefore it stands us in hand to keep a brite lookout. I should be exceeding glad to come and see you my will is good but my bisness will not admit of it. I desire that you would give my love to my 2 brothers Nathaniel and Justice and tell them that all frinds is well I desire that you should send me a letter back by the Bearer hereof and I desire you should (send) £ 2-0-0 in the letter for I am going to Newyork next week. So no more at present but I remain your humble Servant, Isaac Overton.

Among Captain Roe's relics is an itemized account of the expenses incident to the death and burial of Private Israel Smith at Fort Montgomery, Feb. 7, 1777, also a very full inventory of the latter's personal effects. He is given as a member of Captain Roe's Company of the Second Regiment of New York troops, commanded by Col. James Clinton, Esq. In an ancient account-book, nearly or quite as old as the French and Indian War, this record is found: "Monday, the 17th of March, 1777. Got to my family at Darby from Fort Montgomery." Subsequent entries indicate his presence in Derby or near-by towns for several years. Was this the end of his military service? There does not seem to be a definite answer, though it has always been held in the family that he was with General Sullivan's expedition against the Indians in 1779. In the extended publication by the State of New York on this famous campaign against the Indians, it would appear that the Captain's Company was there, under command of Captain Jonathan Titus, and this fact may have given rise to family traditions which frequently become considerably warped.

Without date, these items are found, evidently belonging to the opening days of the War:

My expense going Easter'd after powder was	0-13-9
My expense in numbering the people was	1-18-5
My thime, i.e. (time),	2-10-0
	<hr/> £5- 2-2

Why a pension for Captain Roe's services was so long delayed we can not, at this late date, tell, but among his letters, this from his kinsman, a prominent man in his day, tells that after long waiting it came at last, though not soon enough to be of any particular use to him:

Brookhaven, June the 26, 1819.

Dear Sir: I have the satisfaction to inform you that Government has allowed you a pension of twenty dollars per month during your life, to commence the 6th day of June, 1818, so that you now have more than $250 dollars due, payable the fourth day of September next at the city of New York, the certificate is now in my hands ready when you call.

(The writer discusses at some length the case of Goldsmith Davis, and closes thus:)

With sentiments of respect, I remain,

Your Friend,

Daniel Roe, Esq.

Thos. S. Strong.

Captain Roe's third son, John, is not often mentioned in the diary, because of his absence in New York, and it will be observed that the Captain was concerned chiefly with matters close at home, hence it is fitting that a letter from this son should be inserted.

New York, 25 Jan., 1803.

Hon'd Father: Yours of the 11th inst. arrived yesterday by Cap't Tyrrel with the Hominy. We got it from on board this morning & have all feasted upon it to-day at dinner. I have heard of your ill health; but am now happy to hear of your recovery and of the safe arrival of the girls.

I have nothing material to relate. Mr. & Mrs. Dieterich & family are well and return you their most friendly respects. I have not seen Mr. Sell to-day; but understand that they are all well—his late contract is very pleasing to his mother as well as to himself. My best respects to My mother and the family all including yourself, likewise to all the relative families.

With filial affection,

Sir, yours,

John Roe.

Daniel Roe, Esq.

N. B.—The number of your ticket is 18220. The number of mine is 21669. I tho't it proper to mention this (as we made a little agreement respecting them which you will recollect) before the drawing commences which is a week from to-day.—so that if either of us has any other concern in the lottery, it may not be affected by our bargain which respects only those two tickets.

As a reading of the diary will show, John Roe, the Captain's son, died early in 1808. His wife, Elizabeth, a Foster of Southampton, came back to that town and later m. Deacon Chas. Wooley, and there reared her son, the "Jonny" referred to in her brother Josiah's letter. On the death of her second husband, she went to Honesdale, Penn., where she died March 16, 1851. Those of the family who attended the second Roe picnic, held at Port Bay in the early seventies, had the pleasure of meeting this John Roe, then an admirably preserved gentleman of sixty and past, who, with son and daughter, had come from his Pennsylvania home to greet his kindred. He and his well sustained the reputation so long accorded to the family.

Southampton, 16th May, 1808.

Dear Sir: By this you will be informed that after I left your house I arrived home the next morning before 9 o'clock and by the Beneficence of Providence found all well, My goods and effects arrived soon after, all safe. I immediately consulted Mrs. Roe (his sister) and we concurred in the propriety of advertising as you will see in the Suffolk Gazette—I shall expect Sir—you will attend vendue and as many of our Connections as can make it convenient.

I have nothing special further to communicate at present. Mrs. Roe is with us here: enjoys good health & Little Jonny is very well—Mrs. Roe, myself & Family join in sending our best respects. Sir to you, your family and all inquiring friends—

Yours in sentiments of Esteem,

Daniel Roe, Esq.'r

John Foster, Jun'r.

The intervening century has not dimmed a line or word of this letter, nor in any way obscured the elegant penmanship which, with the unrivaled signature, is worthy of a writing master in the days when calligraphy was a fine art.

The name of Daniel, the Captain's first born and namesake, does not appear anywhere in the diary, a fact to be accounted for as with that of John. The sons were away and caring for themselves. Had they, like their sisters, happened in frequently, they would be on record. In the days of the journal-keeping Daniel was living in Connecticut, and, if he wrote letters to his father, they were not preserved, nor is there mention of the receipt of any. However, when he moved to Wayne County, he corresponded with his Brookhaven kindred, and many of his missives are extant at this time. His youngest brother, Austin, seemed to be a favorite, and among the latter's papers are found several long and interesting communications. The following is a good example of Daniel's style:

Hudson, November 3d, 1823, Monday afternoon.

Mr. Austin Roe.

Dear Brother: I arrived in this city about 12 o'clock this day. I called on a friend who persuaded me to stay with them until to-morrow morning, after I concluded to stay, I went to the river and there found a sloop loaded with clams from Islip—master or owner of the vessel, saw his name was Ruland who expected to return home in three or four days and could send a letter to Cousin Justus Roe almost any day.—The day I left you I arrived to Wid'w Polly Roe's, Huntington. Next day cross'd the ferry and went to Bridgeport put up at Mr. Lockwood's. (Probably Lambert L., son-in-law of Azel Roe, Captain Daniel's preacher brother.) next morning to Derby and in 7 or 8 days accomplished my business and started for home. if I meet with no extraordinary hindrance on the way I expect I may get home by Satterday night—I have great reason to be thankful for the good measure of health which I have enjoy'd since I left you. yesterday, I got to Egremont (Egremont, Mass.), where I met Eld'r Cole, who came out from Hudson to preach in the forenoon from there I went on with him to his next appointment at Hillsdale where he preached again & I there put up at a Broth'r Foster 17 miles from this place. I am now 200 miles from home, you may believe I feel somewhat anxious to know how my family are at home. Dear Brother, my Hart glows with warm affection for you, your dear companion & family tell my dear and affectionate Mother I have some hopes of seeing her again in this world—Remember me to Brother Joseph and all my Sisters and Cousins—If I live to get home, I purpose to write again—farewell may the peace of GOD rest upon you and yours—your affectionate brothere,

Daniel Roe.

SCHOOL-HOUSE NEAR HOME OF CAPT. DANIEL ROE. NEAR THE TREE, AT THE RIGHT, TRADITION SAYS THE TORY CAPTAIN MILLER FELL FROM HIS HORSE IN 1776.

THE SMALL LEATHER-COVERED TRUNK.

When the late John B. Roe of Rose, N. Y., in 1885, passed to his reward, there was found among his possessions a small receptacle for letters and special papers. As his home had been that of his father, Austin, in the latter's old age, this box had come to him, with its contents, from such paternal source. Austin, who had held the position of mainstay for his father and mother, viz., Captain Daniel and Deborah Brewster, received the trunk from the latter. Further than this, authentic history does not go, but we may conjecture indefinitely. Very likely hundreds of similar repositories might be found, but we should search far before finding one just like this, covered as it is with dark brown leather, on which, top and front, are emblazoned, in the midst of elegant gilt tooling, no less than twelve gilded figures of the roebuck, which, in all the annals of heraldry, has ever been the typical figure of the Roe family. It is lined with proof-sheets of some book of travel, themselves printed on the plain side of wall paper. All efforts thus far made to identify the book, and thus ascertain the probable age of the trunk, have failed, but time is long and it may yet be done. The handle, lock and key evidently antedate machine-made articles of the sort, for they are clearly hand-made. Did it come across the sea with our "cordwainer" ancestor, or was it acquired in some more prosaic manner? Who can tell? The fact remains that the trunk is. The widow of John B. Roe graciously presented trunk and contents to Alfred S. Roe, knowing his fondness for ancestral facts. A full catalogue of what it contains can not be given now, but suffice it to state that there are letters many from the Rev. Azel Roe, D.D., and from others; account-books, begun before the Revolution; deeds of the many plots of land belonging to Capt. Daniel Roe and his son, Austin; the papers incident to the settlement of the estates of Laban Worth and Joseph B. Roe; an interleaved and well-noted pocket almanac of 1773; an assessors' rating of Brookhaven tax-payers, made for 1775, by Richard Woodhull and Joseph Brewster, containing 368 town names; bills and receipts bearing the signatures of scores of Brookhaven people of the long ago; a large package of letters addressed by relatives to Austin Roe, and many other interesting and entertaining items. It is evident, from their well-preserved condition, that the Elder Roes carried the key, and that to these precious papers there was no access to the younger members of the family, to the destructive powers of whose fingers the tooth of time is as nothing.

AS TO THE DIARY.

It is apparent that what we have is only a fragment. The previous and later portions have been lost. We sigh for the missing leaves, yet are grateful that so much remains, and every descendant, in mind at least, breathes a thank offering to his kinsman, B. F. Hallock of Lake Grove, Long Island, through whose quick eye and ready hand the manuscript was rescued, as already stated. Written in an old-fashioned hand, with unfading ink, there are sixty-six crowded pages, 8 x 6½ in size.

The edges are somewhat frayed, especially those of the outer sheets, and several pages are badly stained. Paper, in those days, was scarce and none was wasted. There is a system evidenced in its keeping; lines drawn between successive days are sometimes doubled and crisscrossed to draw attention; special event and incident are indicated by marginal characters or words; almost every reference to son-in-law, Laban Worth, has a large L. in the border; the month, as a rule, appears only at the top of the left page, thus saving space.

When the Captain was writing his journal, Noah Webster was only beginning his dictionary, not to be published for twenty years, hence we do not wonder that his orthography is "free and easy," yet its peculiarity affords a clue to pronunciation that must have obtained upon Long Island a century since; for instance, with him wet is always w-e-e-t; creature is "c-r-e-e-t-u-r-e," never that horrible word "critter" so common in the West and South; just what pronunciation was given to his invariable "hogh" can not be shown now, but there must have been a final aspiration, suggested by the favorite snuff of the porker himself; severe is always s-u-i-v-e-r, and why not if spelled phonetically as he pronounced it; his "off" is regularly "of" and "their" does double duty as pronoun and adverb (there). He punctuates very little, occasionally a colon and sometimes a dash; he is erratic in the use of capitals; his ½ he wrote ½; other peculiarities the reader may detect.

As to subject matter, like all insular people, he notes first the weather as of prime importance; his record is for his convenience, and covers things done and matters coming directly under his observation; he is no sentimentalist, and has no word of comment when relatives die, however near the tie, and of his wife, so long by his side, his companion in trials sore, there are very few entries; we must not think for this reason he loved her less. John Stuart Mill in his biography does not once name his mother. Our Captain managed his farm; his wife her house, and they never clashed, for he stayed closely within his own domain.

From a careful reading of the diary we may learn the times of planting and reaping, the manner of threshing grain, the importance of cider making, the value of many commodities, the amount of grain necessary for the maintenance of a small family for a year, that thatch had not entirely yielded to shingles, that family tailoring and shoemaking were then in vogue, that flax had not given place to cotton, and that the loom still entered into woman's work, that clams were an important article of food, that rum had a part in household economy, and, finally, that honest living on Long Island meant hard work early and late, and constantly. Also, so long ago, it appears that one member of the family was more likely to be ill on Sunday than other days, hence Sunday sickness is not a modern trouble. Austin and Huldah, still unmarried, seemed to be unflagging in church-going zeal. The foregoing gives only the salient features of what may be observed from studying the diary; the others are too numerous for recital.

THE GRAVES OF CAPT. DANIEL ROE AND DEBORAH BREWSTER, HIS WIFE, SELDEN, L. I.; THE CAPTAIN'S GRAVE AT RIGHT. ALSO SLEEP HERE IN THE SAME INCLOSURE SEVERAL CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

[EXPLANATORY.—All suggestions and explanations are given in parenthesis. The writer's efforts to emphasize and to specially note, as by marginal words and characters, are indicated by figures in the entry itself, thus Wed., Feb. 26, the parenthetical stars indicate the criss-cross work in the border for that day. The coming of infant stock is shown by hieroglyphs, as may be seen in the half-tone cut, where the sow and five pigs appear. L. for Laban Worth, always in the margin in the manuscript, appears here in the print, i.e., at the end of the entry. As a rule where Christian names are used, they refer to the Captain's children or grandchildren. Finally, every word of the text is in print save two very brief references to stock.]
